TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 1, 1885,

Republican Statesmanship-Hard

Times. The Republican party was dismisse from power last fall for several reasons. One reason was that though they had had control of the Government for twenty-odd years they had, according to their own charges and admissions, not succeeded in perfecting a restored Union. They themselves, as has been well and truly said, had not accepted the results of the war. They wanted a ion restored so far only as to make the southern people tax-payers—not a union under which any southern man could take office. They desired the ssistance of the "rebels" in bearing the burthens of the National Government, but not in sharing the henors or the emoluments of office.

Another reason for dismissing the Republican party from power was found in the hard times of which symptoms began to manifest themselves everywhere last year. But for the appresions which pervaded the public mind on this subject, it is possible that BLAINE might have been elected President of the United States. The panic of 1873, under Republican rule, was still fresh in the minds of the voters. Surely the people cannot have forgotten the terrible days of 1873, when the largest of our banking-houses went down; when almost everybody was afraid to deposit money in any bank; when those persons who had money in bank were afraid to leave it there ; and when, in short, all business was threatened with a total paralysis. What was the Republican remedy for this state of things? Why, their Congress passed the resumption act, which was denounced in the Democratic platform of 1876, and condemned by the people when in November of that year they elected Mr. TILDEN to be President of the United States. Mr. TILDEN did not get the office to which the people had elected him, but Mr. HAYES got it. The resumption act was saved from being an entire failure the veto of Mr. HAYES. But for disaster would have been the result of the attempt to force a resumption of specie payments on the 1st of January, 1879. If Mr. HAYES'S veto had been sustained in 1878, the year 1879 would have seen such a panic as would have ended forever the career of the Republican party. One single fact can be named which ought to render it impossible for the Republican party ever to secure the control of the Government again—the fact that though the national debt has been reduced by about one thousand millions of dollars since the war between the States closed, it would take more wheat, or flour, or cotton, to pay the remainder of that debt now than it would have taken to pay the entire debt in 1866. In 1866 the entire debt was a little over twenty-seven hundred millions of dollars. The average price of wheat in New York the same year was $1.87} per bushel. In other words, fourteen hundred millions of bushels of wheat would have paid the whole debt. The national debt in 1885 is, as we have said, nearly a thousand millions of dollars less than it was in 1866-that is, is about seventeen hundred millions of dollars, and yet it would require, not simply fourteen hundred millions of bushels of wheat, but about eighteen hundred millions of ushels, to pay the mere remainder of

Is it any wonder that the people last year dismissed such a party from power? Are the people of Virginia expected to allow such a party to claim this State as approving statesmanship of that sort? Will you longer trust a party which at the end of twenty-five of role left the country in such a ition as it was in when the Demts took charge of the Government? There is the Democratic speaker who sires any better capital than the facts to which we have called attention in this article?

A French boy who had been conmaed to death for the murder of both his parents responded, when asked If he had any reason to give why sentence should not be pronounced upon him, that he hoped the court would to pity upon a poor orphan. The pudence of the Republican party is sal to that of the French boy. Under rule the panic of 1873 occurred. At the end of the period of its long rule, it leaves the country in the tersecratic party acceded to power. When asked if they have any reason to give why sentence should not be pro-sounced upon them, they actually plead the hard times "!—the hard times which they were responsible in 1873 and again in 1884, and for not preventing which the people last year

SHERMAN'S speeches are better capital for the Democrats of Virginia than for those of Georgia; because SHERMAN, like JOHN S. WISE, made himself conspicuous and notorious in the investigation of the Danville riot. What the Mahoneites can hope to ac-complish in this State by denouncing the people of Virginia, and especially those of Danville, we cannot imagine.

Under the head of "Freaks of Lightning," the Washington Post of yesterday tells the following. The storm occurred about ten days ago : storm occurred about ten days ago:

"The most interesting peculiarity in these strokes, however, was the behavior after striking. At a point about fifteen feet "above ground there is a water-pipe leading to a marble washstand, the pipe being distant at least twenty feet from the rod. Its conductivity was so great that, as compared with the rod, the stroke passed through the twenty feet of air and struck the pipe. This was seen by one observer, and besides the marble stand itself was disturbed and a small piece of it was thrown across the room." thrown across the room

This was not a freak of lightning, but just what the "electric fluid" (so called) will do always under similar conditions. Mr. MAURICE EVANS'S house, on Marshall street, in this city, was "protected" a few years ago by one of the best lightning-rods we ever saw. But the lightning struck it, and the "fluid" ran down it, on the outside of the chimney, until on a horizontal line with a gas-pipe in the house, where it darted through the thick brick wall, and, though it played some pranks in different parts of the room, passed into the earth, no doubt, on the gas-pipe. If the lightning-rod had run into water, or had been connected with the gas- or water-pipes, the "fluid" would not have left it.

It follows that all gas- and waterpipes are a protection to the occupants of a house, if when the lightning strikes them they always conduct the " fluid " into the earth and never towards the burners or the wash-basins. The marble-basin story above told is not inconsistent with what we have said. That was affected by the mere shock.

A Hint. The National Republican, the Washington organ of the Virginia Republicans, savs :

"The Virginia Republicans are managing their campaign admirably, while the Bourbons are decidedly not show-ing the skill which characterized their management last year.' If it be so that the Virginia Democrats are not managing their canvass with their usual skill, is it not a little singular that the Republican should give currency to the fact? Considering the interest of our Washington contemporary in the success of the Virginia Republicans, we should think that it would be very careful about pointing out the shortcomings of the Democrats in managing their campaign. It would appear that wisdom would dictate that it allow the Democrats to pursue the error of their way unmolested. We must, therefore, conclude that the Reby the passage of the silver bill over the verte of Mr. Haves But for courage up." Yet after all there is a campaign material. We will in our what the Republican says that is worth considering. In fact, it might not be amiss for the Virginia Democrats to accept its statement as correctly representing the situation in Virginia and as having been made in perfect good faith. While our advices are to the effect that Democratic organization is going on most satisfactorily, it is well to remember that organization cannot be too complete. While we do not entertain any doubt as to the result in November, the party should guard against over-confidence. It will not do to let well enough alone. Nothing should be taken for granted, but every energy should be ent to the work of improving upon the discipline and management of pre-sive information regarding the Virginia campaign, and thus make assurance doubly sure.

"The self-styled Readjuster-Republicans of Lee county last week nomi-nated H. C. Joslyn for representative. While Mr. Joslyn is a gentleman for whom we have the highest respect, yet his nomination should be a wonder even to Mahene. Mr. Joslyn has always been to Mahene. Mr. Joslyn has always been a bitter and outspoken opponent to readjustment, and used all his influence to defeat the move. He voted for Flanary in 1883, and being convinced that the Democrats 'meant business' in pledging their support to the Riddleberger bill, he returned to the Republican party, because that party was not pledged to the debt settlement, and supported Blaine, 'that old Bourbon Funder,' as Dave Bailey called him, last fall. So, the party that nominated Mr. Joslyn, a first-last-and-all-the-time Funder, cannot claim the support of Readjusters in a race in which they declare that the all-important question to be settled is the State debt."

It must grieve the Mahoneites of Lee

It must grieve the Mahoneites of Le county to witness the inconsistency of the Democrats of other counties.

loaded with passengers up a grade of 310 feet to the mile in Baltimore, and 310 feet to the mile in Baltimore, and does it easily. It is not at all improbable that in five years from now electricity will be the only motor used on street railways, and indeed the only means of lighting the cars at night.— Cincinnati Commercial.

That is the sort of power to overcome the hills of Richmond.

the Republican party there, seems to be the same as human nature in Virginia and in the Democratic party here. The Times gives its Republican readers a warning which we give to our Virginia Democratic aspirants to office. We remind them that the popular elections of this fall will not be for United States senators, but for Governor, Lieuten at-Governor, Attorney-General, and a Leclassed will perhaps be astonished gis'ature. We do trust that the Demo-boys playing leap-frog would call crats of Virginia will have sense enough "high back."

The Democratic Convention of Schuy-er county, New York, held the other day, congratulated the country upon President CLEVELAND's efforts to do equal and exact justice to all sections

What a contrast between the tone of a northern Democratic paper and that of a northern Republican paper. What a contrast between the lows resolutions of the Republican State Convention and those of the Democrats of New York. What a contrast between the speeches of FITZHUGH LEE'S northern friends and those of JOHN S. WISE's northern friends. The South gets justice from every Democratnever from a SHERMAN or other Republican.

HOW SILVER MAY BE CIRCULA-

TED .- The Hartford Courant says : "If Secretary Manning can carry out his policy of calling in and retaining the one- and two-dollar bills, he will find himself pretty generally abused, but he will at the same time solve the problem of forcing silver into circulation. The paper currency is understable exercises and the culation. The paper currency is undoubtedly a great convenience, and the general public prefers it to the bulky silver coin, but we can probably manage to do without as well as they do in England and France. The smallest paper issue of the Bank of England is the five-pound note, equal to twenty-five dollars, and, unless we are mistaken, the law in France is substantially the the law in France is substantially the same. In fact, nearly all over Europe gold and silver coins constitute the cir-

The small notes are indeed a conveience to the public, who will be apt to demand as many of them as may be needed for sending through the mails to merchants, editors, and others.

But there is an unmistakable advantage in having no notes under five pounds. The masses of the peoplethose who easily become panic-stricken and run to the banks to get their notes redeemed-are not many of them apt to have a five-pound note in their possession. So panics are sometimes pre-

Again: When a war comes upon a country, and bank notes or Government securities begin to decline in value, the peeple do not become alarmed. They know that gold and silver have intrinsic value the world over, and that all the money in everyday circulation is made of those precious metals.

Once more: People hoard gold and silver when the paper money is less valuable, no matter how slight the difference in value. Peasants are afraid to pay out their always valuable coin. But when there is no money except gold and silver coins in circulation amongst the masses-amongst those who never have twenty-five dollars at a time-these fears cannot arise.

Colonel Frank G. Ruffin has contri colonel Frank G. Rulin has contri-buted two articles to the Dispatch upon the "coupon decisions," which, like everything emanating from his thorough and well-informed pen, are interesting and exhaustive of the topics of which they treat. It was just the next issue give some extracts from them .- Lynchburg Virginian. Colonel RUFFIN deserves great cre dit for his industry and zeal. His papers are all able. We are expecting another campaign document from him The Democratic speakers must not overlook a timely document published by us last week from the pen of W. POPE DABNEY, Esq.

We think it susceptible of demonstration that much of our present business troubles is due to the unwise and oppressive legislation enacted by the Republican party during and after the war.—Accomack Eastern Virginian.

What else could have caused it? The Democrats have not had control of the Government for twenty-five years. They now have a hostile majority against them in the United States Senate. The hard times of last year and this year must, therefore, be charged to the Republican party. It was owing measurably to the hard times of last year that Mr. CLEVELAND was elected President.

While Mr. Sherman may fancy that his wild waving of the bloody shirt has helped the Republican cause in Ohio, it has very much hurt the Republican ticket in Virginia .- New York World. Certainly it will not help JOHN WISE to be patronized by SHERMAN, the libeller of General LEE and all other Confederates who before the war took an oath to support the Constitution of the United States, BRIEF COMMENT.

Mr. RUSKIN should take his obituary otices and weave them into an artistic utobiography.

"In some portions of the West they re in favor of the graduated liquorlicense." That means the drugstore dodge, we suppose.

"The Iowa Republicans wave the bloody shirt and weep over the colored brother." True. But what else is an Iowa Republican fit for?

A Republican contemporary asks: When will the Administration outing' end?" Not until the last rascal is "outed," we hope.

"JOHN SHERMAN'S big brother WILLIAM stopped fighting twenty years ago." But it runs in the family to "fire up" without provocation.

The Omaha Herald, speaking o Mr. TILDEN, says: "No man ever more implicitly trusted himself." We are not surprised. He knows exactly how much he is worth.

A contemporary asks, "Which is the best way to eat a pear?" If the pear is thoroughly ripe and of a juicy va riety, the best way is to get in your shirt-eleeves and assume a position that apler to make a stamp that contained orable dates. emissioner Colman for M taining a Wretched Little Cabinet. A Washington special to the Phila-delphia Times says: Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, recently made a trip across the green sward of the Mall to see Commissioner-of-Agriculture, Colsee Commissioner-of-Agriculture Col-man. If what has been reported really took place over there it must have been took place over there it must have beer worth going much further to see. Sena tor Ransom wanted a place for a con stituent. In his most affable manner the Commissioner regretted he had no vacancy. "Then I'll tell you how you can make a vacancy," said the Senator. "There is a cow doctor here named Salmon credited to my State. He never voted or lived there in his life. He is from New Jersey, and is drawing a big salary here on the credit of North Car-olina." "But, my dear Senator, I can't."

"Then cut him down to the grade I ask for my constituent."
"Mr. Salmon is one of my righthand men, Senator, and I can't do it.' "It is true, then, as I am told, that you have a little Cabinet of your own over here—a Republican ring—which has disgraced this bureau?" No answer.

"This will be looked into. Your wretched little Cabinet should be broken up. Good morning, sir." The Senator from North Carolina strode toward the door. Colman ran after him and followed him half way down the walk, uttering profuse regrets, apologies, and explanations; but the Senator waved him aside with an "I'll-see-you-later" air and went away. If Senator Ransom will institute an inquiry into the Bureau of Animal Industry, of which Salmon is the chief, he will find nuts enough to crack all winter.

Editor Reanable Review: As I see no difference in the platforms of the two parties, and as both parties agree upon the debt and school questions, and as the old Republican party in Virginia has yielded to the renegade Democrats, and as I believe in honesty in politics as well as in anything else, I shall use my influence for the nominees of the honest, straightforward Democratic party in the approaching campaign, unless it can be clearly shown and proven to me that that party is not in favor of protecting the negro in his rights as American citizens. I am and always have been a Republican, but the nominees of our party are renegade Democratic party are renegated D nees of our party are renegade Demo-crats, and if I must vote for Democrats I want to do it pure and simple. NICHMOND OFFICE No. 1109 MAIN 87 one No., 433. J. H. WHITTY,

Frederic William Farrar, Archdescon of Westminster, who will sail for this continent on September 3d, was born in Bombay, Hindostan, in 1831. His father was chaplain of the fort at the time, and, as a matter of course, a clergyman of the Church of England. The lad received his early education at King William's College, in the Isle of Man, from whence he was entered a student at King's College, London. After his graduation at the London University he was appointed, in 1852, University Scholar. Entering Trinity College, Cambridge, he took his Bachelor's degree with high classical honors in 1854. He had already obtained the Chancellor's Prize for English Verse by a poem on the "Arctic Regions," In 1854 he was ordained deacon, and in 1857 was admitted into priest's orders. For several years he was assistant master of admitted into priest's orders. For several years he was assistant master of Harrow School, and from 1871 to 1876 he filled the position of head master of Marlborough College. His tales of school- and college-life—"Eric; or, Little by Little," "St. Winifred's; or, The World of School," and "Julian Home"—were widely read. Dr. Farrar was select preacher before the University of Cambridge in 1868 and again in 1874-'75, and he was an honorary chaplain to the Queen from 1869 again in 1874-75, and he was an non-orary chaplain to the Queen from 1869 to 1873, when he was nominated one of her Majesty's chaplains in ordi-nary. In 1876 he was appointed one of the canons of Westminster Abbey, and rector of the ancient church of St. Marrector of the ancient church of St. Margaret's, which stands under the shadow of the Abbey. Canon Farrar became Archdeacon of Westminster in 1884, when he resigned the rectorship of St. Margaret's. On July 4, 1879, he characterized the course which alienated the American colonies from the mother country as folly and at the same time. country as folly, and at the same time

Canon Farrar's reputation as an Canon Farrar's reputation as an author reats principally on his later theological works, among which "The Life of Christ," published in 1874, is conspicuous. His "Life and Works of St. Paul," published in 1879, shows no diminution in vigor of style of picturesqueness of description. Among his other works are "The tion. Among his other works are "The tion. Among his other works are "The Fall of Man," "The Witness of History to Christ," and "Eternal Hope." He is a copious contributor to religious and literary publications, and some of his papers on philological subjects attract wide attention. As a preacher Archdeacon Farrar enjoys a reputation not inferior to that which has acquired as an author, and Westminister Abbey is crowded to its utmost capacity whenever he occupies the pulpit. He belongs to the Broad Church School, and the publication of "Eternal Hope," in which he avowed his belief in the possibility of post-mortem restoration to the favor of God, created great excitement in Protestant denominations.

In his American tour Dr. Farrar will be accompanied by Dr. Francis Gerald Vesey, Archdeacon of Huntingdonshire, and a brother of Jean Ingelow, the poetess. Archdeacon Farrar's object is to see the country and to visit some friends: but he will not altogether ab stay. He has made an engagement to deliver the opening address before the New Haven in September. From New be addressed to divinity students and ministers on purely theological subjects.
